HOW TO USE THIS BOOK
A Fishy Story
Pour four coconut shells of water into a giant clam shell.
Take the bibliography and soak in shell.
Mix with salt water and Pohnpei pepper.
Wait 2 minutes or until tomorrow.
And presto! A delicious, well-flavored book.

This bibliography has many uses. It goes beyond the use of solely basal readers and allows the teacher to explore other sources for good literature. The books have been selected to reflect, for the most part, experiences which are real or familiar to the lives of our Micronesian children. One might say, it is a jungle book full of ideas.

The bibliography has been divided into nine sections: Micronesia, Primary, Intermediate, Middle/High, Informational Books, Prose & Poetry, Multicultural Literature, Literature Sets, and Publishers. The categories are not restrictive. This was done intentionally to show that books serve many purposes. For example, Picture Books can be used with upper levels when appropriate. A multicultural literature section includes books as far away as Africa and as close to us as Hawaii. The last section includes addresses of publishers which provides information you may need regarding titles, prices, and other purchasing concerns.

We hope that this bibliography will be of assistance as you select or order books. It takes time and enthusiasm to encourage the love of books among our children. As the 1989 Year of the Young Reader motto expresses:

give us books,
give us wings.

Dear Educator,

This is just the beginning.

After searching through recommended children's literature texts and journals and from what we know about good children's books, we were able to compile a list of books that we felt our Micronesian children would enjoy reading.

This bibliography is not exhaustive. It can and should be extended, updated, and shared with children, parents, and colleagues.

We hope that you will appreciate it as much as we have enjoyed putting it together. Your feedback and additional titles for inclusion in this bibliography are welcomed.
